

UNEMPLOYMENT Case Study

SPX Corporation is a Fortune 500 multi-industry manufacturing leader that provides its customers with highly-specialized, engineered solutions to solve critical business issues.

In January 2010 SPX Corporation switched to Corporate Cost Control due to experiencing a multitude of service issues, including little or no response from their prior vendor. There was little communication when they had a request for information, combined with high turnover on their claims team. This turnover meant SPX had to continually re-educate vendor's personnel assigned to their account as to how their company operated, including critical company policies and procedures. Ultimately, this poor level of service translated to poor results.
